

ABSTRACT

A package stack has at least two packages of area array types (AAT), each having connecting pads. A flexible cable having conductive patterns is provided between the AAT packages and electrically connected to the connecting pads of the packages.